

Brett Wantland

OPERATIONS & GROWTH STRATEGY

Building the operational foundation for sustainable mobile growth.

Brett Wantland brings 25 years of wireless industry experience spanning sales, business development, operations, supply chain, and customer experience. His leadership career includes senior roles with AT&T, T-Mobile, and Telrite Holdings. Telrite has operated as an AT&T MVNO since 2000 and is home to three national wireless offerings: PureTalk and PureTalk Business (postpaid), H2O Wireless (prepaid), and Life Wireless (Lifeline). In his leadership role, Brett helped expand distribution, improve performance, strengthen strategic partnerships, and build scalable revenue-generating programs.

Brett has a proven ability to turn complex business challenges into practical growth strategies. He has built high-performing teams, launched new markets, improved customer experiences, and led organizations through mergers, technology implementations, and operational transformations.

At iPMobile, Brett helps rural and regional broadband providers move confidently from mobile strategy to launch and long-term growth - bringing together the right partners, processes, and operational foundation to build a successful mobile business.
